

1. For item 1, I am attaching my W-2 forms for the years 2020, 2021, and 2022 as evidence of my income from my only job during those years, which was with the United States Marine Corps. These documents will serve to confirm my earnings during the specified period, from 2019 to 2023. Also on deployment i mad some extra cash on the side cutting hair, all my payments were made through cash app which i will provide.
2. For item 2, I have attached all my bank statements, including checking and savings accounts, from 2020 to the present. These documents will provide a comprehensive overview of my financial transactions and account balances during the specified period.
3. I do not have any interest in trusts or estates, nor have I created or controlled any trust, custodial account, or financial account for the benefit of my minor child from January 1, 2020, to the present.
4. For question number 4, as evident in my bank statement from April 10, 2023, I received compensation for conducting a personal move without the assistance of the Marine Corps. I had the option to either have the Marine Corps pay for my move from California to Atlanta or conduct the move myself and receive reimbursement equal to what they would pay a moving company. I chose the latter and received $11,914 on March 28, 2023, as compensation for the move.
5. For question number 5, I have attached my DD-214 as a supporting document. I did not receive any bonuses for enlisting in the Marine Corps, and the only bonuses I would have been eligible for would be related to re-enlisting, which I did not do. All my earnings from the military can be found on my W-2 forms, which I have previously provided as evidence for question number 1. Additionally, I do not have a disability rating and have not received any compensation or payments from the VA.
6. For question number 6, during the specified period, I did not have any additional sources of income apart from my main job in the United States Marine Corps and the housing allowance-related arrangements. Towards the end of my contract, around October 5, I finally got my paperwork fixed for Thigao to be my dependent. I started receiving a housing allowance in case he ever wanted to visit or stay with me, but Amber signed off that he would stay with her, and I would send her $400-$500 per month. We do not have a court order. I have attached the paperwork related to this arrangement. Around that time, you will notice an increase in my pay on my W-2 and bank statements, but this increase was not due to a bonus or any other form of additional income. During that time, I stayed in an apartment on base since it was cheaper, and I rented my room to a coworker from October 5, 2021, to June 20, 2022. Then I moved in with my girlfriend, who later became my wife, and I sent her money for rent since we decided that living together would be financially better for us, considering the increasing expenses in California. I tried to have Thigao come over, but Amber would not let him visit, as evidenced by the messages between us and the paperwork she signed. Additionally, I had a roommate who sent money for the room he was staying in, but he only lived there for a short period.

7. For question number 7, the only instances I can recall sending someone over $500 were to my wife, starting from June 20, 2022, to help with rent, utilities, and other shared expenses. We would help each other out as needed. Additionally, I sent money to my mother, paying her back $3,000 for her assistance in getting a rental truck and $1,500 for the lawyer fees she initially covered until I received reimbursement from the transaction I mentioned earlier. All these transactions can be seen in the Apple Pay, Zelle, and Cash App payments that I have also provided.
8. For question number 8, both my son and I were eligible for free medical and dental care through the military. I enrolled him in DEERS (Defense Enrollment Eligibility Reporting System), which granted him access to free dental and medical care at any military base. I completed my part of the process in California by submitting all the necessary paperwork to DEERS. I informed Amber that all she needed to do was visit a military base with Thiago, provide the required documents, and have his picture taken in person to receive his ID. This ID would grant Amber and Thiago access to the base for medical and dental care, as well as grocery shopping and other tax-free services. However, Amber never completed the registration process, claiming that she could never take a day off work to do so.
9. Attached my TSP account.
10. For question number 10, I have provided as many credit card bank statements as I could access. My bank informed me that I could only go back two years through their mobile platform, and I encountered difficulties when trying to access older statements online. I have included all the available statements that I could obtain within these limitations.
11. For question number 11, I will provide as much evidence as I can. Unfortunately, a majority of my old evidence was stored on my phone, which broke while I was deployed in Japan. I will do my best to gather any remaining evidence that may still be available and submit it to support my case.
12. For question number 12, I have provided the receipts for the expenses I've made. These documents serve as evidence of my spending and can be used to support my case in determining the appropriate child support amount.
13. For question number 13, I have no additional information to provide at this time. All relevant information has been addressed in my previous responses.
14. For question number 14, I believe I have provided all pertinent information regarding my financial situation and ability to pay child support in my previous responses. I have included all necessary documents and evidence to support my statements. If any additional information is needed, I am willing to provide it upon request.

15. For question number 15, I have provided all relevant information about my financial situation, expenses, and any special circumstances in my previous responses. I believe the information provided offers a comprehensive understanding of my financial situation and ability to pay child support. If any additional information is needed, I am willing to provide it upon request.

16. For question number 16, I believe I have provided all relevant information in support of my request for a child support modification in my previous responses. If any additional information is needed or any clarification is required, I am willing to provide it upon request.

17. For question number 17, I am unsure if I have completed a financial affidavit or not. I also don't know how to respond to this question appropriately.

18. In response to question 18, I would like to propose a fair 50/50 co-parenting plan for our son. My primary goal is to ensure that I have the right to see my son and spend quality time with him. I believe that it is in the best interest of our son to have equal time and involvement with both of his parents.

To achieve this, I suggest the following parenting plan:

1 .Legal custody: Both parents should share joint legal custody, allowing us to make decisions together regarding our son's health, education, religion, and other important aspects of his life.

2. Physical custody: Our son will spend equal time living with each parent. This can be achieved through an alternating schedule, such as one week with each parent or another arrangement that works for both parties.

3. Visitation schedules: We can create a specific visitation schedule that accommodates each parent's work and personal commitments while ensuring our son has equal time with both of us.

4. Holidays and special occasions: We can divide holidays and special occasions fairly between both parents, either by alternating years or splitting the time within the same day.

5. Transportation and exchanges: We can work together to arrange pick-up and drop-off locations and times for visitations that are convenient for both parents and our son.

6. Communication: Both parents should maintain open and respectful communication about our son's needs and wellbeing.

I am committed to working cooperatively with the other parent to ensure the best interests of our son are met and that we both have the opportunity to build a strong and loving relationship with him.

19. I have no expert reports or materials to provide at this time.

20. I have no affidavits or statements from persons with knowledge of facts relevant to this litigation, or pertaining to my claims or contentions in this action, to provide at this time.
21. I am providing all available conversations I have had with Amber. Unfortunately, I do not have earlier messages since I got a new phone. However, I am also including conversations with my sister and mom, who would send me pictures and updates of my son when he was with my side of the family. These conversations occurred on a weekly or biweekly basis when my son was unable to come over due to Amber's plans with him. I cannot provide a complete call log as it would be nearly impossible, but I am providing as much communication documentation as I can.
22. I am including screenshots of all the times I've sent money to Amber and my sister for my son's expenses. Unfortunately, I do not have receipts for the expenses incurred while my son was with me, as I never kept track of them. However, I always ensured that I provided for him whenever he needed anything during our time together. If my son were able to testify, he would confirm that I always made sure his needs were met.
23. From 2019 to 2023, I was employed with the US Marine Corps as a LAAD Gunner and Team Manager. As a LAAD Gunner, my primary responsibilities involved operating and maintaining Low Altitude Air Defense (LAAD) weapon systems designed to provide ground-based air defense against fixed-wing aircraft, helicopters, and unmanned aerial vehicles. My role included detecting, tracking, and engaging aerial threats, as well as coordinating with other military personnel and assets to ensure comprehensive air defense coverage. Additionally, I was responsible for the proper maintenance and care of the weapon systems, ensuring their readiness and reliability during both training exercises and real-world operations. During my service, I managed a team of technical experts as head of training and project management in the United States Marine Corps, both in the United States and East Asia. I provided training and education to over 100 employees and dozens of clients in current technology best practices while managing a team of 20 employees simultaneously. I was promoted for my ability to grasp advanced technical knowledge and develop other employees to the same level of expertise. This work resulted in 75% of lower-level employees being promoted to similar roles across the organization and the utmost confidence in the one who took over my position after transitioning to a higher role. I received awards for spearheading and developing training programs by using strong organizational skills and coordinating with team leads across departments, establishing a training program for the organization to provide ongoing training to foreign and domestic partners. My contract was for four years, and during that time, I was able to rank up to Corporal. I never received any bonus, and my pay raises came as a result of my promotions in rank. I am also including testimonials from my chain of command that speak to my work ethic and performance while serving in the Marine Corps. Currently, I am unemployed and seeking a job as a software engineer, as I mentioned earlier.

24. I have reviewed my records and bank statements, and I believe that I have provided all the information that is relevant and related to my fringe benefits from January 1, 2020, to the time of trial. If there is any additional information that is needed, please let me know.
25. Regarding Question 25, I have provided a complete transaction history for all of my electronic funds transfer accounts that I have used, maintained, or accessed since January 1, 2020, up until the time of trial. These accounts include Venmo, Zelle, Chase Pay, Apple Pay, PayPal, and others. I understand the importance of transparency and have provided all relevant information to the best of my ability. Please let me know if there is anything else needed.
